

Abstract

A fluid flow regulating valve assembly whereby the flow of the fluid entering the valve is maintained, restricted, or ceased based on the pressure differential between the fluid source and the fluid destination, where the pressure of the fluid at the source is equal to or greater than the fluid destination. The valve assembly is particularly useful for supplying gaseous hydrogen to metal hydride hydrogen storage vessels.

5